4 PM : Panel program + conversation with renown local artists and water experts from Salt River Project (SRP), Freeport McMoRan and City of Phoenix.

5 PM : Phoenix Mayor's recognition of Billie Jo and Judd Herberger for their generous support for The Gallery @ City Hall, followed by wine and hors d'oeuvres and gallery viewing of "Tap to Source: The Art of Water."

"From Tap to Source: The Art of Water" at The Gallery @ City Hall highlights the ways in which artists have reflected on water and the ancient and modern canal systems that have delivered it in the Southwest. These 26 works, all from the City of Phoenix's Municipal Art Collection, cover a wide range of expressions, media, and themes – all related to the beauty, significance and at times, irony of abundant water in the desert.

The Gallery @ City Hall is one of the few galleries across the U.S. located within a municipal city hall! The Gallery @ City hall features a vast collection of public art donated to the City of Phoenix since prior to statehood! Free and open to the public, the gallery is staffed by volunteers.

The Gallery @ City Hall is supported and operated by the Friends of Phoenix Public Art, a nonprofit organization. The Gallery @ City Hall is underwritten with private donor and grant funding support.
